Notification of Late Arrival / Absence

Children need consistency in their daily schedule to feel safe and secure in their environment. We would like to encourage families to bring children at the same time each day (or as close as possible). We realize that there are appointments that will sometimes interfere with drop-off times. However, we cannot emphasize the difference in a child's day when they are consistently brought to the center at the same time each day. We do request that families drop their child off no later than 9:00am each morning. If your child will be later than 9:00am we ask that families call us to let us know by calling the office or sending the classroom teacher a message on the Brightwheel app. Please remember that it is the family's responsibility to notify the Center if your child is going to be late or absent for any reason. If a child is going to be absent, you must call the center at least an hour before the scheduled time that your child is supposed to arrive. We require all phone calls to the main line 262-472-1768 prior to 9:00am. If a parent/guardian doesn't notify the center about their child's absence or late arrival and the Children Center Staff needs to call, the family will be charged a $10.00 fine.

Hi Fayth,

Thanks for your e-mail. This part of the family is a real problem, isn't it? I have spent a great deal of time trying to sort it out, but I still haven't got to the bottom of it. I will give you the relevant parts of the family tree as far as I have got. We really need to start three generations before Thomas & Mary ? and their family, with, surprise surprise, another Thomas BOSANKO born probably between 1615 and 1620 in Crowan, the son of Thomas & Zenobya. Although I can find no trace of his marriage or baptisms of his children, his widow Catherine left a will which proved helpful (she died Crowan, 1681), and together with one or two other pieces of information gave me the following family group:

Thomas BOSANKO &Catherine<unknown> d.1681,Crowan
Known children: *Thomas died1692, Crowan
Honnor
John died 1687,Crowan
Catherine

I do not have any birth details for these children, so do not know which order they were born in.The tho boys are the important ones from our point of view, so I'll start with Thomas. He married Alce REGNOLD (or REYNOLDS) in Crowan in 1649, and died Crowan 1692:

*Thomas BOSANKO & Alce REGNOLD
Known children:
Thomas,Charity,Regnold,Zenobia,Jane,Alice,Margaret,Elizabeth

Once again, no birth records,but I do know that son Regnold died unmarried in Crowan, 1676.This left one surviving son, Thomas to carry on the surname.He married an Elizabeth in Crowan, 1697:

Thomas BOSANKO & Elizabeth<unknown>
Known children: ~~John bpt.22 feb 1679(later married Elizabeth Dunstone)~~
~~Thomas bpt. 11 mar 1684, married Mary~~ <unknown>,12 feb 1708

This Thomas is of course the one at the start of your e-mail.

Now I will return to the brother of *Thomas, namely John BOSANKO. Once again,no birth or marriage records, but it appears that this brother John left two sons, named John and Regnold. Son John later married an Alce in Crowan,1681, and had the following family:

John BOSANKO & Alce<unknown>
Known children: John
Daniel bpt. 20 mar 1680,Crowan
William bpt. 8 feb 1684, Crowan
Jane bpt.22 may 1692, Crowan

John's other son Regnold (or Reynold) married Dorcas NICHOLS on 3 nov 1703, Crowan:

Reynold BOSANKO & Dorcas
Known children: Reginald bpt. 26 oct 1706, Crowan
Margary bpt. 19 feb 1708, Crowan
Richard bpt. 5 aug 1710, Crowan
Thomas
Mary bpt. 29 apr 1716, Crowan
Anne bpt. 25 mar 1718, Crowan
Dorcos bpt. 21 feb 1721, Crowan
Richard bpt. 6 sep 1724, Crowan

The son Reginald bpt. 26 oct 1706, is of course the one you have in your e-mail, married later Elizabeth PENTECOST.

Fayth, I hope you've managed to follow all that; it might be helpful if you draw out the tree from the above information. You can then see that the Thomas and Reginald that you asked about are not brothers, but Thomas's grandfather and Reginald's father were brothers.The one question that I can confidently answer is that William JEWEL did indeed marry Dorcas bpt 20 apr 1723, daughter of Thomas. I'm not sure yet which Alce married John ROGERS, but I do suspect, like you, that Samuel may well have been Dorcas's brother, born to Thomas.

I am certain that there must be other evidence for these early connections in the family , but almost certainly they are only to be found in Cornwall, particularly in the transfer of ownership of land records, and probably other Crowan wills of maternal grandparents if only we knew the maiden surnames of the females that these BOSANKO'S married.It probably needs someone to trawl through all of the Crowan wills of the period! I have already checked the hearth tax returns for Crowan from the early 1660's. These show that a Thomas BOSSANCOE (presumably *Thomas) was one of the wealthier members of the community there. They also list a widow BOSSANCOE (presumably Catherine).No other adult family members. I am currently tracking down an old booklet which is supposed to list all adult members of Crowan church congregation in the later 17 century. I will let you know of any progress.

Regards, John.

Subject: New face,old history

Hello to everyone!

I am very pleased to be able to join you all on the BOSANKO list.My name is John David BOSANQUET fom Essex,England,and I have been tracing my family history for the last two years.I am descended from John BOSANKOE,a tailor,who appears in London in the 1780's,along with one William BOSANKOE.It would seem that both were from Cornwall,and both settled in London,having extensive families.My surname was changed during the 19th Century,although I'm not sure why.As yet,I cannot be certain which branch of the Cornish BOSANKOE's that John or William descend from,as there are several possibilities for each.I have for some time been trying to eliminate some of these possibilities,in order to close in on the correct connection.

I have done quite a lot of research on the early family in Crowan,and now seem to have most of the links in place from Thomas BOSANCO who died in Crowan in 1621/2 down to about 1740,from when the family started to disperse from Crowan.To answer the recent enquiry from LYLE,I believe that the ⑦ John you are looking for (who married Charity PERRY in 1772) was baptised at Wendron 7 Mar.1741,the eldest son of ⑥ William BOSANKO and Elizabeth (surname not known.)This William was baptised on 2 Mar.1716,Crowan,eldest son of ⑤ William BOSANKO and Margery ,who were married at Crowan,1714.This William was the son of ④ John BOSANKO(died Crowan,1729) and Alce(died Crowan,1732),who were married at Crowan in 1681. ③ John was the son of John BOSANKO(died Crowan,1687),whose parents were ② Thomas and Catherine(died Crowan,1681.)This last mentioned Thomas was the son of ① Thomas(died Crowan,1621) and Zenobya.

Hope you find this helpful,

Regards,John (the ferret).

Cornish Probate Records

This file contains abstracts of probate records held mainly at the Cornwall County Record Office (CRO). Most of them relate to my own family or to names I am researching. I have copies in my possession of some, but not all, of the records abstracted below.

Transcribed by Marie ROSEWARNE from original records at the Cornwall Record Office, from photocopies of original records or from records filmed by the LDS. The records marked with an * are copied from extracts printed in 'The Romance of the Rosewarnes' by Gillian Rosewarne, and I have not had a chance to check the original records.

For those records where the reference is a volume and page number, details are taken from a register copy at the CRO, rather than from the original will. If you think a will or admon may relate to your family you should consult the original record, which in most cases will be available at the CRO.

Note: I have made every effort to transcribe the records accurately, but can't guarantee that there are no errors. If you have any queries feel free to send me an email (Rosewarne@bigpond.com).

DENSCH 11/94

The Parish of Crowan to 1700

The parish of Crowan is situated on high ground on the watershed of West Cornwall. From the north of the parish can be seen the Bay of St. Ives and the hills of Penwith, while views over Wendron and Sithney to the Lizard district can be gained from Releath to the south. Westwards, the horizon is bounded by the conspicuous hills of Tregoning and Godolphin. The parish church, surrounded by a small "churchtown", is situated in a commanding position on the top of a hill, with moorlands ending in Black Rock and Crowan Beacon rising above it to the east.

The parish takes it's name from a Celtic saint, with the first reference in a document not later than 1147 where it appears as "Eggloscraweyn" which means in Cornish "the church of Saint Crewan", and appears to have later been evangelised by St. Euny, for in 1702 the parish is referred to as Uni-Crowan. Crowan Feast is held on 1st February (or the nearest Sunday), which is the same date as the festival of St. Euny. The parish is actually made up of two parts; the northern portion, containing the church and about two thirds of the parish is in the hundred of Penwith, whilst the the other containing Nancegollan, Releath, Polerebo and the chapelry of Binnerton lies in the hundred of Kerrier. The manor of Binnerton was once a Chapelry in its own right, and it may be that the name Uni-Crowan commemorates the amalgamation of these two districts. Four visible memorials of the Age of Saints in Cornwall still remain in Crowan in the form of Celtic stone crosses, three of which are now the grounds of Clowance having been moved from their original crossroads locations, with the other at Praze-an-beeble.

By 1294, Crowan, as part of the manor of Connerton, had become part of the property of the Benedictine Priory of St. James of Bristol which in its turn was part of the Abbey of Tewkesbury. This remained so until the Abbey of Tewkesbury was suppressed in 1539, when all of it's lands fell to the Crown. The patronage of Crowan was purchased from Henry VIII by Thomas Seyntaubyn Esq., Sheriff of Cornwall, in 1546 when it appears that Crowan was quite a wealthy parish. It seems that Guy St. Aubyn, who married Eleanor Knoville, first brought the St. Aubyns from Somerset to Cornwall, and his grandson, Geffrey married Elizabeth Kymyell of Clowance which established the Crowan connection. By 1426, Geoffrey St. Aubyn and his son Geoffrey were farming the tithes of Crowan and St. Wenn at a rent to Tewkesbury of £26. For the next few centuries, the St Aubyn family were a very influential family in Cornwall with strong ties to Gloucester and Devon. In 1643, and again in 1667, John St. Aubyn of Clowance was Sheriff of Cornwall. During the civil war, he was a supporter of Cromwell, although his brother Thomas was a colonel in the King's Army. In 1666, Henry St. Aubyn was vicar of Crowan when Seth, Bishop of Exeter, issued a commission to settle the seating arrangements in Crowan church, which had apparently been causing a great deal of concern in the parish. The church contains several monumental inscriptions to the St. Aubyn family.

Up to 1700, most of the inhabitants of Crowan lived off of the land, and farming had been the main economy. However, amidst this arable land was a time bomb ticking which would profoundly change the economy and very fabric of this community, as it did in so many other areas of Cornwall. The name of this beast is of course tin, a commodity which had previously been extracted mainly from the abundant streams which crisscrossed the landscape, but which was to become so much in demand that it would become the single most important factor shaping the future of Cornwall and its people for the next one hundred and fifty years.

THE EARLY FAMILY IN CROWAN

This ancient parish of Cornwall appears to be the origin of all of the existing branches of the family name in the world today. The earliest reference to the family is the muster roll of 1569 listing all males between 16 and 60. Only one family member appears on this list for Crowan parish, named as one John Bossancothe, liable to provide a billhook and bow if required. I have found no further references to this individual and therefore cannot yet connect him to the family tree, although he is possibly the same John whose admin. exists from 1601/2 in the parish of St. Ives.

By 1619, the first family baptism entry appears in the parish register, which has Blanche baptised the daughter of Thomas Bosanko and his wife Zenobya. At this time, Thomas was presumably aged between 25 and 50 , with Zenobya probably aged 21 to 42. The admins. for Thomas show that he died 1621/2 and that he was a yeoman of considerable standing, suggesting that he was likely to have been at least middle aged at the time of his death. Also, the administration was granted to his widow, indicating that any sons were under age 21 at the time of Thomas's death. The protestation returns of 1641 list two adult males named as John Bosanckoe and Thomas Bosanckow, who were therefore born by 1623 and are likely to be sons of Thomas and Zenobya. Since the father Thomas died in 1621/2, and he had a daughter baptised in 1619, then at least one of these two sons must have been born by 1617. It therefore seems likely that :

A) father Thomas was born between 1569 and 1592,
B) wife Zenobia was born between 1577 and 1599,
C) son Thomas was born between 1603 and 1622,
D) son John was born between 1603 and 1622.

The next clue comes from the Hearth Tax of about 1662, listing two households in Crowan, one headed by Thomas and the other by a widow whose Christian name is not given. This Thomas must surely be the son of Thomas and Zenobia and therefore aged between 40 and 59 in 1662. The widow could just possibly be Zenobya but is more likely to be the widow of her son John. Considering next the will of Thomas Reynolds, made in 1660, the testator refers to his daughter Alice as being the wife of Thomas Bosanko, and also gives the names of their children as Reynold, Charitye, Zenobia, Jane, Elizabeth, Alice, and Margaret. The will states that Reynold is under 21 in 1660, and since he inherits a very considerable amount of property, he is likely to be in his teens at the time the will was written. He therefore must have been born 1642 to 1649. The five daughters are all under 18 and so were born 1642 to 1659. An additional son, Thomas, was probably born after Thomas Reynolds' will of 1660 which makes no mention of him, whereas he is mentioned in the will of Henry Runnals in 1686. This son Thomas also left a will in 1710 in which he refers to his grandfather Thomas Reynold deceased, and it is likely that he was born about 1661.

Now, Thomas b. 1603 to 1622 made his will in 1692 and died a few months later. He would almost certainly not have lived past age 80, and so was probably born 1612 or later. On the protestation returns of 1641, Thomas was a constable and therefore likely to be over 21 in 1641 and so born before 1620. Also, his sister Blanche was baptised in 1619, and so he was likely to have been born at least two years earlier, by 1617. All of this, therefore, suggests that Thomas was born between 1612 and 1617.

Assuming that the children are named in the will of Thomas Reynolds from the eldest to the youngest, the family unit headed by Thomas, son of Thomas and Zenobya was probably :

Thomas b. 1612 to 1617 (died 1692) ; son of Thomas & Zenobya
Wife Alice nee Reynolds b. 1619 to 1625
Son Reynold b. about 1643 (died 1676)
Dtr. Charitye b. about 1645
Dtr. Zenobia b. about 1649
Dtr. Jane b. about 1651
Dtr. Elizabeth b. about 1653
Dtr. Alice b. about 1656
Dtr. Margaret b. about 1659
Son Thomas b. about 1661

Considering next the will of Catherine Bosanko made in 1681/2; she was a widow with two sons, Thomas and John, and two daughters, Honnor and Catherine. She could have been the widow of John who was born 1603 to 1622, or Reynold who was born 1642 to 1649. But Reynold died in 1676 and his father was granted administration, with no mention of his leaving a widow, so Catherine must have been the widow of John. Indeed, she must have been the widow on the Hearth Tax return of 1662. Also, Catherine had two grandsons by the time of her death which means that her eldest son Thomas was probably born by 1652. It now seems probable that John and Catherine were the couple married in 1649 at Crowan, and that John was born about 1621, and would therefore have been aged about 28 at the time of his marriage. Further supporting evidence for Catherine can be found in the will of Honour Tregeare from 1655, in which the testator calls Katherine Bosance her 'natural daughter'. Clearly, Catherine named her first daughter Honnor after her mother, Honour Tregeare. The estimate for Johns's age is again reinforced by the fact that his brother Thomas apparently inherited more than him which would make more sense if John had been the younger brother. So, a second family group in the mid seventeenth century was as follows :

John b. 1620 or 1621 (died before 1662) ; son of Thomas & Zenobya
Wife Catherine b.1618 to 1631 (died 1681/2)
Son Thomas b. about 1650
Dtr. Honnor b. about 1652
Son John b. about 1655
Dtr. Catherine b. about 1658

DENSCH 11/94

What is apparent from the hearth tax return of the 1660's is that Thomas Bossancoe was amongst the higher levels of Crowan society, with four chimneys returned. Out of the total return of 186 chimneys for 92 households, leaving aside the St. Aubyn family who were at the very top of the society with 25 chimneys, then Thomas's family unit was amongst the top ten of the remaining 91 households in the parish, if wealth and standing could be measured by chimneys alone. His will describes him as a yeoman, a recognised higher level of society; he was apparently educated enough to be able to read and write, and of high enough regard to have held the position of parish constable. His elevated position in the community becomes reinforced when studying the family names of those associated with the Bosankoe family through marriage or as witnesses to wills, etc., many of which also appear in the higher levels of the hearth tax returns.

From the Crowan parish registers, John b. about 1655 married Alise unknown in 1681, and baptised five children by 1700 named Daniell, William, Jane, Thomas, and Alce. However, from the will of this John in 1731, it is clear that he had at least one more son, named John, who inherited the major part of his father's estate. From the baptism dates of the other children, this son John could have been born either in 1682 or else between 1686 and 1690. My interpretation of the phrasing of the will of 1731 is that son John is not the eldest son of this family and that his elder brothers are specifically allocated smaller amounts to save any dispute about the estate. I therefore think that son John was born about 1688, and that this family group was as follows:

John b. about 1655 (died 1729) ; son of John & Catherine
Wife Alise unknown b. about 1660
Son Daniell b. 1680
Son William b. 1684
Son John b. about 1688
Dtr. Jane b. 1692
Son Thomas b. 1695
Dtr. Alce b. 1699

The only remaining baptisms in the Crowan registers for this century are those of John b. 1679 son of Thomas, and Thomas b. 1684 son of Thomas. These are probably brothers, and are likely to be sons of Thomas b. about 1650 son of John & Catherine, as the only other possible Thomas around (b. about 1661 son of Thomas & Alce) would have only been about 18 years old when the baby Thomas was born in 1679. Catherine's will of 1681mentions a grandson John, who was probably this John b. 1679. The other grandson that she mentions, Reynold, was probably born to Thomas about 1677, although there is no baptism entry, and this family group was as follows:

Thomas b. about 1650 ; son of John & Catherine
Wife unknown
Son Reynold b. about 1677
Son John b. 1679
Son Thomas b. 1684

THE FAMILY IN 1700

The last marriage of this century at Crowan was that of Thomas Bosankoe in 1697. Although the parish register does not name his wife, she must have been named Elizabeth as she is referred to in the will of Thomas in 1710, which also names Thomas's sister as Alise. So this Thomas must be Thomas b. about 1661 son of Thomas & Alce, who did indeed have a sister Alise, and as the will says, a grandfather Thomas Reynolds. He married fairly late in his life at the age of about 36, and there is no record of any children from his union with Elizabeth.

A few additional facts regarding some of the Crowan family that have also emerged are :

? Blanche (possibly b. 1619, but more likely to be another individual that there is no other reference to) married Henry Davies before Nov 1686.
Charitye b. about 1645 married Edward Truman before Nov 1686.
Zenobia b. about 1649 married Richard Trowook before Nov 1686.
Alise b. about 1656 married firstly a Mr. Hoard between Nov 1686 and June 1692, and secondly Stephen Nicholas before 1710.
Elizabeth b. about 1653 married Richard Thomas at Gwithian or Phillack in 1686.
Margaret b. about 1659 died a spinster at Crowan in 1692.

THE FAMILY IN 1700

Assuming they had not died without a will or burial record, there were apparently just ten male individuals by 1700, all still in Crowan as far as is known, who could pass on the family name into the eighteenth century. These are named below:

1) Thomas Bosankoe aged about 39, married for three years to Elizabeth unknown..

2) Thomas Bosanko, aged about 50, married to unknown, with three sons:
3) Reynold Bosankoe aged about 23, single.
4) John Bosankoe aged 21, single.
5) Thomas Bosankoe, aged 16, single.

6) John Bosankoe, aged about 45, married to Alise unknown, with four sons:
7) Daniell Bosankoe, aged 20.
8) William Bosankoe, aged 16.
9) John Bosankoe, aged about 12.
10) Thomas Bosankoe, aged 5.

{ 2) and 6) were brothers, being the sons of John & Catherine; whilst 1) was the first cousin of 2) and 6), and was the son of Thomas & Alce.}

It seems that, at this time, all of the heads of these three families were yeoman (gentlemen farmers), earning a living off the land, and reasonably well off. They also seem well respected, with two members having recently been church wardens for the parish, and some were at least literate enough to sign their name. The family had inherited additional estate from Thomas Reynolds in 1662 and now owned land at Dowath and Bolongon in the parish of Crowan , at Cardon in the parish of Gwendron., and also at Trevoule, Cardenam, and Trenerth.

Towards the end of the century, it seems that there were just three family units producing children to carry on the family name. The first of these was headed by Thomas, born about 1661 son of Thomas & Alce. He married Elizabeth unknown in 1697 at Crowan, and died in 1710. The second was headed by Thomas, born about 1650 son of John & Catherine. Although there is no record of his marriage, he appears to have had three sons; Reynold born about 1677, John born 1679, and Thomas born 1684. Thirdly, there was John born about 1655 son of John & Catherine, who married Alise unknown in 1681 at Crowan. He produced at least four sons and two daughters before 1700; Daniell born 1680, William born 1684, John born about 1688, Jane born 1692, Thomas born 1695, and Alce born 1699.

OUTSIDE OF CROWAN

Whilst Crowan in the 17th century seems to be the origin of the present Bosanko family descendants, there are a few early references to the family in other parishes in Cornwall. The muster roll show a Thomas Bossancquthe in St. Ives in 1569 who must have been aged between 16 and 60 at the time of the muster roll. We have an inventory for John Bysanko from 1601/2 at St. Ives which suggests that he had already given away most of his belongings, possibly to a son, and was now getting on in years. Presumably, these individuals are related to the Crowan people, but as yet there is no way to connect them. Similarly, there is a record of Tristram Bosanko, marrying Agnes Stodden at Truro in 1602, but there appear to be no descendants from this union and it seems probable that he died soon after marriage as his widow Agnes remarried Edouardas Priest just five years later in 1607. There was certainly another branch arising in Wendron by 1602, with the recorded marriage of William Bosankoe to Joan unknown on 19th January, followed by the baptism of his daughter Joan in 1605. Joan later married John Prior junior at Wendron in 1631, and a Margaret Bosancoe, possibly sister of William, married League Williams in 1620, also at Wendron. Following the marriage of an Elizabeth Bosankoe to John Michell in 1646, the Wendron branch is not found again until 1683 with the marriage of Henr. Bosankoe to William Gundry. Elizabeth, a daughter of William, was baptised at Budock in 1608, but no further references have been found to this family, and it is therefore likely that there were no male descendants.

Another curious stray appears in Constantine in 1626 where we find the marriage of Jane Bossanchawe to Edward William. Finally, in 1686, Elizabeth Bosanco marries Richard Thomas, apparently at both Phillack and Gwithian, and this Elizabeth we know to be the daughter of Thomas & Alice of Crowan, born about 1653.

CORNWALL MUSTER ROLL 1569

Crowyn Parryshe : a a d John Bossancothe bill bow

Sent Tyves Parryshe : Thomas Bossancquthe alm . Rivet ----- 11 sh. Arr

Notes to muster roll

"a a d" signified an able archer, "bill" is short for billhook, "bow" for longbow, "sh. Arr." for sheath of arrows, "alm.rivet" for almain rivet, a type of light armour first used in Germany.

A sheath contained 24 arrows costing about 2d each. The Cornish longbow was somewhat longer than the standard English longbow, which consequently required a stronger pull. It is therfore thought that Cornishmen were rather more muscular than other Englishmen.

Billmen wore a morion, and were mainly used in infighting, particularly agaist cavalry, when close ranks of billmen would present a row of billhooks to the enemy.

The muster roll was limited to males aged 16 to 60 and includes the following:

Crowyn Parryshe : a a d John Bossancothe bill bow

Sent Tyves Parryshe : Thomas Bossancquthe alm . Rivet ----- 11 sh. Arr

Cornwall Protestation Returns 1641 (T.L. Stoate. 1974)

Wendron parish: Willyam Bosankow +

Crowan parish: John Bosanckoe + Thomas Bosanckow, constable.

The protestation was an oath of allegiance to the King and the established church. A bill was passed in Parliament in July 1641 requiring those over the age of 18 to sign the protestation. In practice, this meant all men; women were not usually asked to sign. No one was allowed to hold office in the church or the state unless they signed. A letter was sent by the Speaker of the House of Commons to the sheriffs instructing them to take the protestation with the justices of the peace in their county, and then the incumbent of each parish was to read the protestation to his parishioners and they were all to sign. This took place in February and March 1641/2. The Protestation Returns were then sent back to Parliament.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to extend my grateful thanks to the Cornwall Record Office, Cornwall Online Parish Clerks, and the National Archives who, between them, have been the sources of the majority of documentary material used in this study. I am also indebted to the Cornish Studies Library and the Cornwall Family History Society for access to pertinent reading material.

Additionally, I would like to thank all of those family members, friends, and contacts, far too numerous to name individually, for their input during my family history research. I hope that this study goes some way towards repaying the support that they have freely offered over the last thirteen years.

Any queries please email: john.bosanquet@tesco.net

NOTE

Because of the calendar change in 1752, dates between 1st January and 25th March are written here as both old style year and new style year, separated by a slash, so that, for example, a date which was originally recorded as February 1621 appears here as February 1621/2.

FOREWORD

As will soon become apparent from just a brief look at the references in the appendix, the numerous spelling variations of the Bosankoe name can present quite a challenge for those of us searching for historical evidence. In fact, there are 23 different spellings to be found just amongst the references included here, and this number rises to several dozen when one comes to research the later family history. Many of these variants are to be found in the original documents, whilst others come from errors in transcriptions and indexing. Frequently, even the same individual is recorded differently over their lifetime. It is, therefore, quite easy to miss references to the name, particularly when using electronic searches (even with the use of several 'wildcards'.) For this reason, all surnames, Christian names, and place names that have been found in other forms in the references, appear in italics throughout those sections which develop the 17th century family history.

I have deliberately avoided using data from genealogical websites as I have not always found it reliable. The references supplied here are either to the original documents or to early transcriptions. However, it should be born in mind that, whilst most of the relationships and timelines presented here are based on documented references, some are speculative and cannot yet be factually proved or disproved. They are my interpretation of the evidence, hence the title, 'A History of the Bosankoe Family' and not 'The History of the Bosankoe Family.'

It is satisfying to think that at some point in the future a researcher somewhere, very likely a distant blood relative of mine, might be ferretting around and come across this history. At least they will have the benefit of finding a wealth of evidence collected together in one place though they may disagree with my analysis. Their own attempts to interpret the facts will surely lead to yet more evidence being unearthed, and on to a better understanding of our family history. There is always more to discover; so especially to you if you happen to be one of those kinsfolk, I would just like to say "Good luck on your journey, and be sure to keep on digging!"

THE ORIGIN OF THE SURNAME

The records of the past 400 years contain dozens of alternative spellings of this surname but in recent times the number of variants has reduced to just a handful. Currently the surname survives mostly as Bosankoe, Bosanko, Bosanco, and Bosanquet, with individuals spread around the world from the Americas to Australasia.

There has been some controversy and much confusion surrounding the etymology of this surname for at least 150 years, and this continues to the present day, particularly with the Bosanquet form. This confusion is therefore addressed below before pursuing the root of the surname.

The 1870 standard reference book 'Patronymica Cornu-Britannica (The etymology of Cornish surnames)' by R.S.Charnock has the following entry:

'BOSANKO, BOSANKOE, BOSANQUET, BOSANQUETT: From bos- aneou, the house of grief or sorrow. Lower suggests that this name is of French origin. He says, "Pierre Bosanquet, of Lunel in Languedoc, at the period of the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, had seven children, two of whom, John and David, sought refuge in England, and from the latter the various English branches are descended. The name is local, and was formerly prefixed with Z)e." This may be so, and still the family may have been originally from Cornwall.'

The four surnames had been extracted by the author from the Cornwall Post Office Directories of the time and he should be given credit for recognising that they did indeed belong in the same family group. Unfortunately, he then chose to associate this family with the Bosanquet family of French origin that M.A.Lower had described in his 1860 classic 'Patronymica Britannica –A dictionary of the family names of the United Kingdom.' The vast improvements in collecting and storing records over recent decades, together with advances in digital technology, have meant that extra information from earlier centuries is now readily available for study. With reference to the 19th century censuses, it is clear that when Charnock wrote his book the only Bosanquets to be found in Cornwall were living in the parish of St Ives, and closer study of this family group now shows that they descended from the Bosankoe family which first appears in Cornwall parish registers in 1602.

Naturally, from Victorian times onwards, family historians that consulted the quoted reference works would have relied on their authority. Now that it is clear that these references are misleading, this begs the question as to why the Bosanquet variant of Bosankoe has survived to the present day. Cornish records do not display the Bosanquet variation until the late 18th century, and similar transformations can be found amongst other Bosankoe migrants into Devon, Bristol, London and Middlesex from about the same period.

In order to understand why this should have occurred, it is instructive to look at the history of the Bosanquet family of French origin, which has been extensively researched and published as 'The Story of The Bosanquets' (Grace Lawless Lee, 1966) together with an associated pedigree. This book is still in copyright and not easy to access, but the same basic history is repeated in a later obituary to L.S. Bosanquet (1903-1984) by D.C. Russell which is accessible at oxfordjournals.org. Originally published in 'London Mathematics Society' No.18, this states: "The founder of the English branch of the family was David Bosanquet, born 31 October 1661 at Lunel, Languedoc. David fled to England on the revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1685 and set up as a Turkey Merchant, which meant that he was a member of the Levant Company trading in the riches of the East. His arms and pedigree were recorded by the College of Heralds in 1687, and in 1695 he was joined by his brother Jean, who had been imprisoned at Dunkerque. Though Jean remained unmarried, David in 1698 married Elizabeth Hays (whose descent from King Edward III is documented) and had 14 children, of whom Stephen is descended from the second son Samuel. Elsewhere the English family tree is liberally sprinkled with knights, generals and admirals, judges and barristers, rectors and vicars, and scholars such as the philosopher Bernard Bosanquet (1848-1923) and L.S. Bosanquet himself. One member of the family in Victorian times was a knight and Privy Councillor, and another was Master of the Mint in India. Another was B. J. T. Bosanquet (1877-1936) who played cricket for England and who invented the 'googly', a style of bowling designed to be unpredictable to the batsman; the Australians at the time used to call it the 'Bosey'."

From this it is apparent that there would have been few disadvantages were members of the Bosankoe family to be perceived as having connections to this prestigious Bosanquet family. This would be true regardless of whether the recorded variant spelling of their surname came about by accident or design. Reference books such as Charnock's 1870 work served to reinforce this association when interested parties went looking for family background. The confusion persists into the 21st century, and, at the time of writing, the 2006 'Internet Surname Database' website still lists the following entry for the name Bosanko:

'This is an English surname, but of two possible origins. The first is from the Celtic county of Cornwall, where it is a compound consisting of the elements "bos" meaning a house, and "anger", a pasture, to give the house by the pasture. This is from the pre 10th century Old Cornish and Bretonl. However a second possible origin is French. It is known that Huguenot refugees from Lunel in the Langedoc region established themselves in Cornwall in the early 16th Century. There they were recorded as Boscaneth and it seems that this name also recorded as Bosanquet may have become integrated with the original Cornish "Bos-anger", to give the present spelling.'

Whilst this website goes on to correctly identify the earliest parish register record for the name as Bosankoe (Wendron, Cornwall, 1602), the earliest document now accessible which uses a different spelling for the surname dates from 1486 (see below.) This, therefore, dates the surname to some decades before the start of the Huguenot migrations.

The question then remains as to the etymology of the surname forms of Bosanko and Bosankoe which were clearly dominant in Cornwall from 1602. Both Charnock, in 1870, with his 'from bos-aneou, the house of grief or sorrow' and G Pawley White, a Grand Bard of the Cornish Gorsedd , who wrote in 1981 in his 'A Handbook of Cornish Surnames' : "Bosanko : From bos ancow , dwelling of death or bos an cos , dwelling in the wood" seem in close agreement and, as I am not familiar with the Cornish language, I accept their translations. It should, however, be born in mind that these relate to the surname spellings of 1602 onwards, and the definitions may or may not hold true for the earlier spellings.

The Cornwall Muster Roll of 1569 names two probable family members – John Bossancothe of Crowan and Thomas Bossancquthe of St Ives. 'Cornwall Subsidies in the Reign of Henry VIII' (T.L Stoate, 1986) lists William Bossancott of Mousehole in Paul in 1545, John Bossancow of Truro in 1543, and, even earlier, John Bosanquoth of Crowan and John Bossanquyth of Paul in 1524. The author does point out that surnames in the west of Cornwall had not become entirely fixed and hereditary by 1524, and also that one naming custom at this time was to take the name of the farm or hamlet where the individual lived. Further back still, court rolls from 1486 and 1496 (Lanante, and Penwith Hundred) held at the Cornwall Record Office both mention one Henry Bosancoth.

Interestingly, even today there is a locality named Bosanketh (which apparently is Cornish for "house of the serf".) This is a place close to St Buryan, near Penzance, and where there are still properties named "Bosanketh Farm" and "Bosanketh Cottage." The same place has also at times been variously recorded as Bosancothe, Bosancotha, Bosanqueth, Bosanquoth, and Bossanquoth. The most compelling evidence for the origin of the surname can be found in a 1497 document held at the Cornwall record office. This records a 'confirmation of gift' and refers to 'John son of Thomas Bossanquoth of Bossanquoth.' This strongly suggests that this place name is indeed the likely origin of the earlier forms of the surname.

THE FAMILY IN CORNWALL, 1486 - 1601

With very few references to family members prior to the 17th century, only very limited family history conclusions can be reached. The following is a list of individuals, gleaned from the currently available records, who are likely to have been family members:

Year	Name	Residence (modern name)	Source [see appendix(i)]
1486	Henry Bosancoth	---	(court records from Lelant)

From these references, it is clear that there were at least three adult males in Cornwall towards the end of the 16th century. The two court records from Lelant almost certainly refer to the same Henry, whilst the 1497 and 1498 documents both refer to 'John son of Thomas.' Henry's residence is not given, but the Lelant court only had jurisdiction over the 'hundred' of Penwith, which was then comprised of 24 parishes in mid-west Cornwall. Included in these was the parish of St. Buryan, which was named as the residence of 'John, son of Thomas' in the 1497 records just one year later. Henry, then, is very likely to have been closely related to the Thomas of Bosanketh, St. Buryan and to his son John. It is also clear that Thomas' son John would have been at least 21 years old by 1498 when he gifted property in St Levan, a neighbouring parish of St. Buryan (in fact, the two were originally one parish.) By 1524, Henry and Thomas had probably died, as they are not listed on the Subsidies. Of the two Johns that were listed, one is likely to have been the same John named in 1497 and 1498.

Although further relationships cannot be deduced, the records do give some other insight into the family. For instance, they show that one man, John, was in a position to be able to give away some of his land and property in 1497. Another John was a yeoman farmer who died in 1601/2 and left a £39 estate which included 7 silver spoons, whilst Henry was fined for evading excise duty on ale.

It is also clear that some of the individuals listed above, or their descendants, migrated away from St. Buryan by about the end of the fifteenth century. There are no further references to the family in the parish after 1498. By the end of the sixteenth century, branches of the family had settled in St. Ives, in Wendron, and in Crowan. With the death of John in St. Ives in 1601/2, the family seems to have become limited to just Wendron and Crowan. The parishes into which the family moved are all just a few miles from the family's origin in St. Buryan, and are shown on the map below.

THE FAMILY IN WENDRON, 1602 – 1646

The branch of the family that settled in Wendron was headed by William. He was listed on the Protestation Returns in 1641, and his wife was probably the Ann who was buried in the parish in 1644. The parish registers show that the couple had four children, all daughters: Marg(aret), probably born about 1599 and married Teague Williams in 1620; Jo(hanna), born 1602 and must have died as an infant; Jo(hanna), born 1605 and married John Prior junior in 1631; Elizabetha, born 1608 and married John Michells in 1646.

Since he was raising a family from about 1599, it is likely that William was born by about 1574, and his Wendron branch of the family tree is shown below:

William ==== {Ann} unknown
{< 1574}

Johanna
1602

Margaret === Teage Williams　　Johanna === John Prior jnr.　　Elizabetha === John Michells
{1599}　　1605　　1608

With no sons produced by William, the name died out in the parish with his death in 1646.

THE FAMILY IN CROWAN, 1619 – 1700

The 1641 Cornwall Protestation Returns list only three adult males bearing the family name and, when one of these (Wiliam) died in Wendron in 1646, apparently leaving no male heirs, this left Crowan as the sole surviving seat of the family name for the next fifty years or so. The logical conclusion is that all subsequent generations of the family have descended from the two adult males, Thomas and John of Crowan, who are named on the Protestation Returns.

This hypothesis is supported by the parish register records which do not record any other males outside of Crowan for the remainder of the century. Furthermore, the surname does not appear to have been recorded elsewhere in sources such as probate, leases, hearth tax and so on during the same period. Fortunately, with careful consideration of the evidence presented here, it is possible to piece together this Crowan family through to 1700.

In the following analysis, a superscript is used (e.g. Thomas^1 & Thomas^2) in order to distinguish between different individuals with the same Christian name. In some instances, where the ages of individuals cannot be directly extracted from documented evidence, these have instead been estimated using the widely accepted average traditional marrying ages for the period (25 for males, 21 for females) and/or the customary childbearing age for females of between 21 and 42. Additionally, because of the prevailing religious commitment of the time, it is assumed that baptisms usually occurred very shortly after births during the 17th century. The analysis is therefore subject to an inherent but acceptable margin of error.

Firstly, the Protestation Return shows two Crowan men, Thomas^2 and John^1, who must have been at least eighteen years old to be included in these 1641 returns and who were therefore born sometime before 1624; indeed the fact that the record describes Thomas^2 as a parish constable implies that he was at least 21 in 1641, and therefore born by 1620.

The parish register lists a 1619 baptism of Blanche to parents Thomas and Zenobya, and, with the absence of evidence for any other family in Crowan between 1569 and 1619, it is most probable that Thomas^2 and John^1 were sons of this Thomas^1 and Zenobya. The 1622 probate administration for Thomas^1 was granted to his widow, Zenobia, and describes him as a yeoman with an estate valued at a little over £51. This suggests that he died unexpectedly and left no son aged 21 or over as they would normally have been granted administration. So, with at least three children born between 1601 and 1622, it is reasonable to suggest the following initial proposals:

- Thomas^1 was born 1569 – 1592; married Zenobya 1594 – 1616; died 1622 aged 30 - 53.
- Zenobya was born 1577 – 1599; married 1594 – 1616, died after 1622.
- Thomas^2 was born 1601 – 1620 the son of Thomas^1 & Zenobya.
- Blanche was born 1619 the daughter of Thomas^1 & Zenobya.
- John^1 was born 1601 – 1622 the son of Thomas^1 & Zenobya.

In order to develop this further, it is helpful to focus separately on each of the two sons, Thomas^2 and John^1, and their subsequent families.

Thomas^2

Fortunately, the very detailed will of Thomas Reynolds, written in 1660, provides a lot of evidence relating to the family of Thomas^2 (who was in fact his son in law.) It names Thomas^2's wife as Alice (nee Reynolds) and also identifies his children (it also suggests their ages): son Reynold (under 21), and daughters Charitye, Zenobia, Jane, Elizabeth, Alice, and Margaret (all under 18.) The later 1686 will of Thomas Reynolds' brother, Henry Runnals, also names most of these children, some married and some not, together with another son, Thomas, who was surely born after the 1660 will which had made no mention of him.

Based on these wills, and assuming the children are named in the wills in order of their ages, the following deductions seem logical:

- Thomas^2 was born about 1616; married Alice Reynolds about 1641.
- Alice Reynolds was born about 1621 and the children of Thomas (2) & Alice were:
- Reynold^1, born about 1643.
- Charitye, born about 1645; married to Edward Truman by 1686.
- Zenobia, born about 1649; married to Richard Treweeke by 1686.
- Jane, born about 1651.
- Elizabeth, born about 1653; unmarried by 1686.
- Alice born about 1656; unmarried by 1686.
- Margaret born about 1659.
- Thomas^4 born about 1661.

Thomas^2 was granted administration of the substantial estate of his son Reynold^1 who died in 1675. His spinster daughter, Margaret, died in 1692 (from the Admin. of her estate), and Thomas^2 died less than a year later leaving a will in which he bequeathed most of his £117 estate to his wife 'Alse.' It also names one daughter as 'Alse Hoard', and another daughter as 'Elizabeth Thomas' (her marriage to Richard Thomas in 1686 is recorded in the Phillack parish registers.) It also names a son, Thomas, who was to inherit his father's gold ring. When this son, Thomas^4, died in 1710 he left a will (written in 1709) in which he referred to 'my grandfather Thomas Reynold' and 'my sister Alise now wife of Stephen Nicholas' and 'my dear wife Elizabeth.' It does not mention any children, and his estate was valued at £79. The parish register records the marriage of Thomas^4 in 1697 and also the burial of Thomas^2's widow 'Allis' in 1702.

With the benefit of this additional information, the earlier deductions regarding Thomas^2 and his immediate family can now be revised as follows:

- Thomas^2 was born about 1616; married Alice Reynolds about 1641; died 1692/3.

- Alice Reynolds was born about 1621; married Thomas^2 about 1641; died 1702/3. The known children of Thomas^2 & Alice were:

- Reynold^1 born about 1643; died 1675, probably unmarried with no children.

- Charitye born about 1645; married to Edward Truman 1686.

- Zenobia born about 1649; married to Richard Treweeke by 1686.

- Jane born about 1651.

- Elizabeth born about 1653; married Richard Thomas 1686.

- Alice born about 1656; married Mr Hoard by 1686, and secondly Stephen Nicholas by 1709.

- Margaret born about 1659; died unmarried in 1692.

- Thomas^4 born about 1661; married Elizabeth unknown 1697; died 1710.

John^1

Whilst Thomas^2 appears on the 1664 hearth tax returns, his brother John^1 does not; the only other family member listed is a widow Bossancoe. The 1655 will of Honour Tregeare names her daughter as Katherine Bosance but makes no mention of any grandchildren from Katherine (although it does mention her other grandchildren.) The earlier will of Honour's husband, John Tregeare in 1635, helps to estimate Katherine's age. It shows that she was then unmarried, and had been gifted money by her father previously, probably when she reached 18. When Katherine died as a widow in 1681/2, her will named two sons, Thomas and John, and two unmarried daughters, Honnor and Catherine. Using this information, John^1 and his family can now be developed as follows:

- John^1 was born about 1614; married Katherine Tregeare about 1650; died about 1660.

- Katherine Tregeare was born about 1616; married John^1 about 1650; died 1681/2. The children of John^1 & Katherine were:

- John^2 born 1650 – 1658.

- Thomas^3 born 1650 – 1658.

- Honnor born 1650 – 1658.

- Catherine born 1650 – 1658.

It is now possible to extend this family by considering documented references to the sons, John^2 and Thomas^3:

John^2 and Thomas^3

The parish register record shows John^2's marriage to Alise unknown in 1681/2, and also the baptisms of five children to John^2; Daniell in 1680/1, William in 1684/5, Jane in 1692, Thomas in 1695/6, and Alce in 1699/1700. To these must be added another son, John^{3}, who is named as executor in John^{2}'s will which was made in 1725 and proved in 1731 (and which also names his wife Alise and sons William and Thomas^{6}.) Katherine's will of 1681/2 names two grandsons, Reynold and John, and, as her son (John^{2}) had only married one month earlier, these two grandsons were most likely her son Thomas^{3}'s boys. The parish register shows a John baptised son of Thomas in 1679/80, and a Thomas baptised son of Thomas in 1684/5.

A lease document of 1706 names a Katherine as 'daughter of Thomas Bosancoe of Crowan.' She appears again on a 1726/7 document as 'Catherine Sincock (formerly Bosancoe)', and in the parish register as marrying Edward Sincoke in 1705/6.

The family headed by John^{2} can now be summarised as:

- John^{2} born about 1656; married Alise unknown 1681/2; died 1731.
- Alise unknown was born about 1660, married John^{2} 1681/2; the children of John^{2} & Alise were:
- Daniell born 1680/1.
- William born 1684/5.
- John^{4} born about 1687.
- Jane born 1692.
- Thomas^{6} born 1695/6.
- Alce born 1699/1700.

The family headed by Thomas^{3} can now be summarised as:

- Thomas^{3} born about 1651 ; married unknown about 1677; died after 1705.The children of Thomas^{3} and his unknown partner were:
- Reynold^{2} born about 1678.
- John^{3} born 1679/80.
- Katherine born about 1682; married Edward Sincoke 1705/6.
- Thomas^{5} born 1684/5.

Of the surviving Crowan parish register records, just two Bosankoe burials (1687/8 and 1690) remain unaccounted for as the Christian name is now illegible. It has also become apparent that many other family baptism, marriage, and burial records have not survived or are illegible. It is highly likely that other individuals were born into the family but never reached adulthood and so it is probable that no further evidence for these will ever emerge.

The following table includes all individuals known or believed to have been born with the Bosankoe surname in Crowan up to 1700, together with their year (or estimated year) of birth, death, and first known marriage. An entry in bold type indicates a surviving parish register record, and an underlined death year indicates a probate record.

(There is evidence for one additional female, Temperance, alive at the end of this century. This can be found in the Crowan parish register record of 1701 which records the baptism of her base child, Jane.)

Individuals are, of course, more than just a product of their bloodlines; they are also shaped by their environment and the times through which they live. Having pieced together most of the 17th century family tree, it therefore seems sensible to give some consideration to the local history and the physical and social environment of the time. Many of the individuals in the above table are discussed further later, following a look at the wider picture of 17th century Crowan.

HISTORICAL AND ENVIRONMENTAL BACKGROUND

The following description of Crowan is from Magna Britannia: volume 3: Cornwall (1814) (courtesy of 'British History Online'.) Whilst not contemporary, it is still much closer to the relevant era than we are now:

'CROWAN, in the hundred and deanery of Penwith, lies about four miles south from Camborne, which is the post-office town, and about five miles south from Helston. The principal villages in this parish are the church-town, Cargenwen, Drym, Praze-an-beoble, Trethannas, and Trevoole. The manors of Helligan and Clowance belonged to the ancient family of Helligan, who had their residence at the former place. The heiress of Helligan married into the family of Kemyell of Kemyell, in St. Paul. In the reign of Richard II., Geffrey St. Aubyn became possessed of this estate by marrying with Elizabeth, daughter of Piers Kemyell. Clowance has ever since been the chief seat of the ancient family of St. Aubyn, now represented by Sir John St. Aubyn, Bart., whose ancestor of the same name was raised to that dignity in the year 1672. There is a view of Clowance house in Borlase's Natural History. This place has been much improved by extensive plantations, both by the last and the present Baronet. The manor of Binnerton belonged, in the reign of Richard II., to the Beauchamps, afterwards to the Despencers: it is now the property of Sir John St. Aubyn, Bart., whose ancestor purchased it, in 1567, of Sir George Speke: the manor-house is now occupied by a farmer.'

Whilst there was some money to be made from small scale tin and copper extraction (activities which were to become much more important in the 18th century), the majority of the Crowan population was dependant on farming, and life revolved around the farming calendar. Crops were mostly barley, oats and peas, and sheep were farmed both for food and to supply the important wool industry. Farmers would have made regular trips to the nearer market towns to sell their goods and to purchase supplies. Society was made up mostly of a gradation of farmers from husbandmen labouring for others, smallholders with short term tenancies, through yeoman with long term leases and/or freeholds, up to the wealthiest landowning gentry. A few parishioners would be engaged in service trades supporting the agricultural economy or the day to day needs of the community. Respected parishioners were chosen to act as parish constable and as church wardens. Religion played a dominant role with most people attending church services regularly, the parish church being not just a spiritual centre but also a hub of social interaction.

The population of Crowan during the 17th century can be estimated from several sources. Whilst the 1569 Muster Roll recorded 109 males aged 16 to 60, this had risen to 176 males aged 18+ by 1641 as shown on the Protestation Returns. The Hearth Tax Returns of 1664 recorded about 90 dwellings in the parish. The church seating plan of 1666 named 83 females and 75 males (almost certainly the heads of households and therefore excluding children and unmarried adults living with their parents), plus the St. Aubyn family with its followers and servants. G.H. Doble's book 'A History of the Parish of Crowan' (1939) states "In 1672 we learn from a document at Exeter {Cathedral Archives} that there were 400 Conformists [to the settlement of 1662] in Crowan, 9 Nonconformists and no Papists." The details from all of these sources are consistent with a population of around 400 individuals in the parish in the 17th century.

The basic framework of 17th century English society was made up of the King, the Parliament, and the Church. Of these, the Church had just emerged from a series of crises which had included the abolition of Catholicism which in turn had resulted in the failed attempt to blow up the Houses of Parliament (the "Gunpowder Plot.") Years of disagreement between the King and Parliament then led to the most important national historical event of the century, the English Civil War.

In Cornwall there was a strong allegiance to the position of both the King and the Church (of which he was the head.) However, unpopular taxes and the King's neglect of coastal defences at a time of international piracy were causing discontent and divisions, even within families. When civil war broke out in 1642 most of the county (including most of the great Cornish families) was Royalist.

The year before war started, in the parish of Crowan, 176 males aged 18 or over had signed the Protestation Oath which was an oath of loyalty to the King and to Parliament. By 1642, the differences between King and Parliament had reached breaking point making it impossible to remain loyal to both. Those that had sworn allegiance to both institutions were therefore placed in the unenviable position of having to choose one or the other. John St. Aubyn of Clowance chose to support Parliament, a decision that resulted in his considerable lands being sequestered by the Royalists at the start of the war. This must have been hugely significant to the lives of the locals as John St. Aubyn was not only the largest landowner and employer in the area but he was also Lord and Patron of their parish church of St. Crewenna. Divided loyalties amongst the local community must have run very deep - even John's own brother, Thomas St. Aubyn, served as an officer in the King's Army during the war. By 1646 in Cornwall, the tide was turning against the King, and John was by then a colonel in the New Model Army, famously winning St Michaels Mount from the Royalists.

Following the overthrow of the monarchy the war finally ended after 9 years in 1651, and England became a commonwealth with Cromwell as Lord Protector. His objectives were the 'healing and settling' of the nation and 'spiritual and moral reform' of the population, but by the time of his death in 1658 these had not really been achieved. Churches had become more Puritanical with interminably long sermons necessitating seats to be installed for the congregation; Christmas and Easter were officially suppressed and 'immoral' activities such as gambling and the theatre were banned. After the restoration of the Monarchy in 1660 life started to settle back to a more traditional normality. The old male dominated class hierarchy remained in society much as before the war, with the same class divisions from nobility down to gentry to yeomen to the proletariat.

These social divisions are clearly reflected in the 1666 church seating plan for St. Crewenna, Crowan which not only segregates the sexes but also the classes of the local society. Comparison of the Hearth Tax returns of 1664 with the seating plan reveals that the higher tax payers (the gentry and the yeomen farmers) were allocated church seats nearest to the pulpit whilst the poorest parishioners were seated furthest from the chapel.

FAMILIES RELEVANT TO THE BOSANKOE FAMILY

Several families were particularly relevant to the Bosankoe's at this time and, whilst a detailed family history of these is beyond the scope of this study, some background details are given below, together with known family relationships to the Bosankoe family.

St. Aubyn* family:

Since the reign of Richard II, the large estate of Clowance in Crowan had been the seat of the ancient family of St. Aubyn. John St. Aubyn was born about 1609, the eldest son of Thomas St. Aubyn of Clowance and Zenobia (nee Mallet.) He married Catherine Godolphin in 1637 and produced a family of six sons and four daughters. He was a colonel in Cromwell's army during the Civil War, purchased St. Michael's Mount in 1657, and was twice High Sheriff of Cornwall. He died in 1684 and his tomb can be found in Crowan parish church (of which he was lord and patron.) His eldest son, John, was created a baronet in 1671, and another member of his family, Henry St. Aubyn, was vicar of Crowan from 1666 until 1699. Due to its power and influence in the parish and beyond, this family must have been significant to the Bosankoe family, although no documented connections have so far emerged.

Tregeare* Family:

Bordering the Clowance estate on the east is Tregeare, which was, according to 'Magna Britannia' (Cornwall, vol. 3, 1814), for generations, the seat of an ancient family with its own coat of arms.

William Hal's 'History of Cornwall' (written about 1730; published 1750) has the following entry: 'Tregeare or Tregeire, Cornish-Saxon, in this parish, i.e. the dwelling of honour, or the honourable dwelling, gave name and original to a British family, from thence denominated De Tregeare. It is now in the possession of my very kind friend Richard Tregeare, Esq., Sheriff of Cornwall 3 of Queen Anne, and receiver of the Land Tax temp. William III., who married Rawle, the relict of ...... but died without issue, who left his estate to one of his name (though none of his tribe or blood, as I am informed), who gave for his arms, in a field Argent, a fess Gules between three Cornish daws Proper.'

Richard Tregayer appears on the Crowan muster roll in 1569, and he and his son, John, are named in a 1685 lease held at the CRO. This son and heir raised the inventory upon the death of Thomas[1] Bossangkoe in 1622, when he was recorded as 'John Tregeare, gentleman.' When John Tregeare himself later died in 1635, his will also described him as a gentleman. He died leaving a widow, Honnor, three sons and four daughters, and, of these, three of the daughters married into the three Crowan families of Bosankoe, Tyracke, and Davey. Others in his family are also mentioned in his will: a brother Thomas, two nieces, Dorothy and Katherine, together with a married sister, Elizabeth Len (and 'her children.')

The Crowan protestation returns of 1641 list three adult males with this surname, Richard, James, and John, who were clearly the sons of John and Honnor. Some twenty years later, in 1664, Richard Tregeare, 'gentleman', had a large house with 8 hearths, and in 1666 he was officially allocated the traditional family seat at the front in the parish church, whilst a 'widow Tregeare' sat below the pulpit.

The Tregeare dynasty ended in 1732 with the death of a Richard Tregeare who left no male heirs. During his life, this Richard had been sheriff of Cornwall, and sometime after his death the Tregeare estate was purchased by Sir John St Aubyn.

It is clear that the Tregeare family were large landowners and were a prominent part of the Crowan parish gentry during both the 16th and the 17th centuries – probably second in importance only to the St Aubyn family.

Tyracke* Family:

Henry Tiracke became vicar of Crowan in 1557, and Benedict Tyracke, clerk, was vicar from 1583 until his death in 1595; he was then immediately followed by Henry Tirack who remained vicar until at least 1630.

A 1629 will of John Tyrack, yeoman of Crowan, is held at the CRO, and the 1641 Protestation Returns list a Thomas Trerack.

John Tregeare's will of 1635 included his married daughter Grace Tyracke (to whom he had already given £40 upon her marriage) and 'her children.' Unfortunately, neither this will nor the will of John's widow Honour in 1655 named Grace's husband, although the latter did give the name of one of her children as John Tyracke. Grace had clearly married into a profoundly religious family (perhaps even to the vicar or his son?), and she was also linked into the Bosankoe family through her sister, Katherine, who married John[1] about 1650.

The only other references to this family in Crowan that I have found are to a Thomas (who witnessed the will of Thomas Glasson in 1663, had 2 hearths in 1664, sat near the front of the church in 1666 and who died in 1669), and to a Gertrude, who is named on the church seating plan.

Davey Family:

In 1635, Henry Davie helped to raise the inventory of the estate of John Tregeare, whose last will contained references to 'my daughter Charitye Davie and her children.' One of these children was named in the will of Honour Tregeare in 1655 as Grace Davy, presumably named after her mother's sister Grace (Tyracke.)

The 1641 Protestation returns for Crowan include three Davies, John, Alex, and Martin, but the 1664 Hearth Tax names only one; Henry Davy with 4 hearths. In 1666 Henry Davie sat next to Thomas[2] Bosancko at the front of the church, and their wives also sat together near the front, whilst John Davies, Peter Davie, and William Davie sat in the South Aisle.

There are several further references to this Henry Davie. In 1681/2, he, along with Thomas[2] Bosanko, witnessed the will of Catherine Bosanko and raised the inventory of her estate. In 1683/4 he helped to raise the inventory on the estate of Blanch Glasson. In 1686, Henry, and his wife Blanch (who died in 1706), were named in the will of Henry Runnals. In 1692, Henry Davey witnessed the will of Thomas[2] Bosanko and helped to raise the inventory of his estate a few months later.

The bond between Henry Davie and Thomas[2] Bosankoe was strong enough to last at least from 1666 until 1692 and suggests that the two may have been related through marriage.

Reynolds Family:

This family was represented in Crowan by Thomas Renolde on the Muster Roll of 1569. There is then a long gap in the documentary information until 1641 when the Protestation Returns listed a Thomas Renolde, a Henry Reignold, and a William Reignold in Crowan.

The will of Thomas Reynolds (written in 1660/1) shows that he was a wealthy yeoman with lands, tenements, and two chattel estates, much of which he bequeathed to his grandson Reynold Bosanko. It also names his son William, his daughter Alice (wife of Thomas[2] Bosanko), his brother Henry, his brother John, and nephew William, as well as several other grandchildren. On his death, his estate was valued at £424.

Many of these family connections are confirmed in the will of Henry Runnals, yeoman (written in 1686), which also contains a bequest to his godson, Thomas[4] Bosanko, and to Blanch Davies. Henry had also acted in the administration of the estate of Reynold Bosanko in 1676.

Glasson Family:

The first reference to this family in Crowan is the 1641 Protestation Return which records a Henry Glazen, a John Glason, and a Thomas Glasen, (possibly father and two sons) Then comes a will for Henry Glason, yeoman, in 1655.

The next source is the will of Thomas Glasson, yeoman, written in 1663 and proved in 1665/6. The bulk of his estate passed to his unmarried sister, Blanche, described as 'blind and weak.' The accompanying inventory was raised by Richard Tregeare and Thomas[2] Bosanckoe. The 1666 Hearth Tax shows that Thomas had 6 hearths before he died and that after his death the property was occupied by Chris Nicholls and Thomas Tregeare.

In church, Blanche Glason sat next to widow Tregeare on the fourth seat below the pulpit in 1666, and died 1683/4 leaving a will. The inventory to her estate was raised by Henry Davies and Christopher Nicholls.

THE BOSANKOE FAMILY REVISITED

Many of the significant historical, religious, social and economic factors outlined above can be used, together with the Bosankoe family connections developed earlier, to produce a better understanding of family events and individuals. This, in turn, can help point to reasons why some things happened the way that they did. It can also raise further questions and so encourage other avenues of research.

The following profiles include both verifiable historical dates and also estimated dates which were either deduced in the earlier analysis of the family, or are guesstimates which now seem to fit in the light of the historical, social, and economic backgrounds presented above.

Thomas[1] and his family:

Whilst there is no direct evidence for his parentage, it is very likely that Thomas[1] named one of his sons (he had a John and a Thomas) after his father. It was the custom to honour ones parents in this way reflecting the 5th Commandment, and a look at the family tree on page 23 confirms that the Bosankoe family mostly followed this tradition. It is therefore probable that Thomas[1]'s father was the John who had been recorded on the Crowan muster roll in 1569. Furthermore, the inventory of Thomas[1]'s estate in 1622 included 7 silver spoons, which precisely matches the 7 silver spoons in the inventory of John of St. Ives in 1601/2. The two were also both yeomen with comparable estates, and it does seem very possible that they were father and son. If so, it poses a question as to why John should have left Crowan for St. Ives in his later years.

All of this does not help with Thomas[1]'s birth year, which was estimated previously as between 1569 and 1589. However, the later connections all seem to flow smoothly if he is assumed to have started his family about 1614, so his marriage can be estimated as about 1613. Thomas[1] and his wife Zenobya would have been comfortably off and well respected in the community. They were socially close to the gentry family of John and Honnor Tregeare (whose daughter, Katherine, was to later marry their son John[1]), and also to another yeoman, Henry Davies, and his wife, Charity nee Tregeare (another daughter of John and Honnor.)

After the birth of his third child, Thomas[1] died unexpectedly. He was probably only in his forties. Administration of his estate was granted to his widow, with the inventory raised by John Tregeare, gentleman. The estate, valued at £51, included 7 silver spoons, a gold ring, crops, animals, and household goods. Zenobya was left with three young children; John[1] aged about 8, Thomas[2] aged about 6, and Blanche aged about 3. Zenobya, with young children to care for, would not have been in a position to work and manage the farm(s) without help, and the evidence points to this support coming from the landowning Tregeares, as well as the yeoman families of Davey and Reynolds in Crowan, rather than from the Bosankoes in the neighbouring parish of Wendron.

John[1] and his family:

John[1] was born about 1614, the first child of Thomas[1] and Zenobya. A brother, Thomas[2], was born two years later, followed by a sister, Blanche, born in 1619. His father, a yeoman farmer, died unexpectedly when John[1] was just 8 years old, and, whilst the family had been fairly well off to this point, it must have been a difficult time for his widowed mother and her three young children. No doubt John[1] and his brother would have needed to mature very quickly to help support their mother, and it is likely that the local community, particularly the Tregeare family and the Davey family, helped to educate both brothers towards earning a living.

In 1641, aged 27, John[1] swore the oath to his King, and the Civil War broke out the following year. His brother, the parish constable at this time, also swore the oath and, soon after, married and started a family. However, John[1] did not marry until about 1650, after hostilities had ended, and it is entirely possible that he had been away fighting in the war. His bride was Katherine, 34 year old daughter of John (and Honnor) Tregeare, who, as one of the local gentry, would probably have supported the dominant local St. Aubyn family on the side of the Parliamentarians during the war.

John[1] and Katherine produced four children: Thomas[3], Honnor, John[2], and Catherine during the 1650's. Around 1660, fate again dealt a cruel blow to the family when John[1] died aged about 46, leaving his widow with four young children. Unfortunately, no probate documents for John[1] seem to have survived, and there is no indication as to his occupation. However, later evidence shows that his son, Thomas[3], grew up to become a tailor and his other son, John[2], became a yeoman farmer. In 1664, his widow was recorded with just one hearth on the tax returns. Widow Katherine was clearly less well placed than her brother in law, Thomas[2], who had four hearths. It is probable that her teenage son, Thomas[3], was by then apprenticed to a local master tailor in order to ease the financial situation of the family.

Doubtless, Katherine and her children were supported in these difficult times by her own brothers and by her late husband's brother and sister. When she died, in 1682, it seems that most of her assets had already been passed to her two sons previously, and she named her two daughters as executors to her remaining £20 estate. This suggests that they were both still unmarried, and living with her at the time of her decease, although they were both well above marriageable age. Her last will and testament shows that Katherine was clearly still close to her brother in law, Thomas^2, who was a witness to the document, along with Henry Davey.

Thomas^2 and his family:

Thomas^2 was born about 1616, the son of Thomas^1 and Zenobya. When his father died in 1622, Thomas^2 was just 6 years old, with an 8 year old brother, John^1, and a 3 year old sister, Blanche. As discussed previously, his family were respected in the community and moved in the higher levels of Crowan society including the gentry Tregeare family and prominent yeoman farmers. In 1641 aged 25, Thomas^2 held the responsible position of parish constable, and also married about the same time. His bride, Alice Reynolds, was the daughter of one of these yeoman, and the couple produced eight children over the following twenty years: Reynold (1643), Charity (1645), Zenobia (1649), Jane (1651), Elizabeth (1653), Alice (1656), Margaret (1658), and Thomas^4 (1661.)

Thomas^2 was clearly a successful yeoman, and very highly regarded in Crowan. He had a house with four hearths in 1664, and was to be found seated amongst his peers at the front of the parish church in 1666. About 1673, one of his daughters, Zenobia, married Richard Treweeke (son of a family of gentry from the neighbouring parish of Camborne) with whom she had several children from 1674 to 1689. Of Thomas^{2}'s other daughters, Charity married Edward Truman, Elizabeth married Richard Thomas in 1686, and Alice married, firstly, a Mr Hoard, and, secondly, Stephen Nicholas. The youngest daughter, Margaret, died unmarried in 1692.

In 1661, his only son at the time, Reynold^1, had been bequeathed a substantial inheritance (from his maternal grandfather) which Thomas^2 administered for three years until Reynold^1 reached age 21. Reynold^1 seems to have been something of an adventurer and used some of his inheritance to buy a twentieth share in a tinworks. When Reynold^1 died unmarried in 1675 at the age of just 32, his father, as his next of kin, was granted administration of his estate. The death of a son was, no doubt, a tragedy, and the following year his daughter, Zenobia, and her husband, Richard Treweeke, named their next son Reynold to mark Reynold^{1}'s passing. It is also apparent that the death of his eldest son also made Thomas^2 (already a successful yeoman) a relatively wealthy man as he inherited an additional estate valued at £169.

In 1682, 66 year old Thomas^2 was clearly still close to his deceased brother's (John^{1}'s) family. He was a witness to the last will and testament of his sister in law, Katherine. Her eldest son, Thomas^3, had also paid tribute to the memory of Reynold^1 (his cousin) by naming his first son Reynold^2.

Another close bond existed between Thomas^2 and Henry Davey. They were both yeoman of similar age, both had four hearths in 1664, and they sat together in church, next to the minister's seat. They were also related through marriage because Henry's mother (Charity nee Tregeare) was an older sister of Katherine nee Tregeare, the wife of John^1 (brother of Thomas^2.) As discussed earlier, Henry and Thomas^2 both witnessed Katherine's will in 1681/2, and Henry also witnessed the last will and testament of Thomas^2 in 1692. Henry's wife, Blanch, sat next to Thomas^{2}'s wife, Alice, in church. There seems to be enough circumstantial evidence here to infer that Henry Davey was married to Thomas^{2}'s sister, Blanche, and that they had probably been almost life-long friends.

When Thomas^2 died in June 1692, he was aged about 76, and his probate documents are interesting. His last will was written on 1st June 1692 and the inventory of his estate was drawn up later the same month on the 28th. He bequeathed the majority of his £117 estate to his wife, which is curious as he had one surviving son, Thomas^4. The more usual custom of the time was for the son to inherit his father's estate, often with conditions that his widowed mother must be provided with accommodation and/or a small income (in fact, had Thomas[2] left no will, his estate would have most likely passed to his son as his next of kin.) The fact that this son was unmarried at the age of 32 may have had a bearing on his father's decision, and it certainly appears that there was some kind of difficulty as the will was not proved until seven months later, on 26th January 1692/3. Whatever the intent of Thomas[2] at the end of his life, when his will was finally proved his widow immediately assigned her not insignificant inheritance to their son. Widow Alice died nine years later in 1701/2, by which time son Thomas[4] had finally married.

Thomas[3] and his family:

Thomas[3] was born about 1651, the son of John[1] and Katherine nee Tregeare. Three siblings were born subsequently: Honnor about 1653, John[2] about 1656, and Catherine about 1658. The family lived in a modest home with just one hearth in 1664, and it seems that Thomas[3] was probably apprenticed to a tailor as a young teenager, following his father's death about 1660. This conclusion has been reached because Thomas[3] is recorded as a tailor in a 1706 lease document, and it was customary for young men learning trades such as tailoring to begin apprenticeships in their teenage years.

Thomas[3] married about 1676 and produced four known children: Reynold[2] about 1678, John[3] in 1680, Katherine about 1682, and Thomas[5] in 1685. Whilst two children were given the names of their paternal grandparents (John & Katherine) the first born son was named after Reynold[1] (a cousin of his father), who had recently died at the early age of 32.

There is no direct evidence for the name of Thomas[3]'s wife, but later evidence shows that each of his three sons named one of their own daughters Ann. Given the customary naming pattern, it is probable that Thomas[3]'s wife was therefore named Ann. It is also likely that she was born about 1655, and was a daughter of one of the families in the front few ranks of seats of the church in 1666. She would then have only been aged about 30 when her last child was baptised, so she may have died shortly thereafter. Thomas[3] himself survived into the next century as evidenced by his name appearing on a 1706 lease.

John[2] and his family:

John[2] was born about 1656, the son of John[1] and Katherine nee Tregeare. Unlike his brother, Thomas[3], who became a tailor, John[2] followed his family's traditional occupation of farming. As he was only about 4 when his father died, his farming education was probably gained from one of his uncles who were amongst the yeoman and gentry of Crowan. His only paternal uncle was Thomas[2], a yeoman, and it is most likely that he went to live with him and his family to learn the business. The section below on Thomas[4] pursues this likely scenario.

John[2] married on 6th February1681/2. His bride, Alce, was probably born about 1660, and almost certainly the daughter of another local yeoman or gentleman. Within one month of the marriage, John[2]'s widowed mother wrote her will (dated 1st March), and died shortly after.

The couple produced six known children: Daniell in 1680/1, William in 1684/5, John[4] about 1687, Jane in 1692, Thomas[6] in 1695/6, and Alce in 1699/1700.

Thomas[4] and his family:

Thomas[4] was the eighth known child of Thomas[2], yeoman, and Alice nee Reynolds. His one older brother, Reynold[1], was already about 18 when Thomas[4] was born, and sadly died when Thomas[4] was just 14.

When his father died in 1691/2, Thomas[4] was about 30 and still unmarried. He acquired most of his father's £117 estate when his mother assigned her legacy to him. He eventually married an Elizabeth in 1697 and died childless in 1710.

Thomas[4] died leaving an estate of £79 (including one chattel estate), mostly to his widow. This indicates that between 1692 and 1710 he had given away (or, possibly, lost) about a third of the £117 estate that he had received following his father's death. As discussed previously, some of these lands and properties had once been owned by his grandfather, Thomas Reynolds, and had passed to Thomas[4] through the family via his brother, Reynold[1], and his parents, Thomas[2] and Alice. These included property and/or lands in Bolongon, Trevoole, Cardinham, and Dowath (all in Crowan), and Cardon in Wendron. It can be no coincidence that these were precisely those leased for one year to Richard Tyack, gentleman of Germoe, by Thomas[4] in 1706. Furthermore, a chattel estate in Bolongon was in the ownership of John[2] when he died in 1731 (as named in his last will), and it also appears that John[2]'s sons acquired lands and/or property in Wendron during the early 18th century.

A sensible conclusion seems to be that Thomas[4] gifted his estate in Bolongon (and, probably, his estate in Wendron) to John[2] between 1706 (when he leased them out) and 1710 (when he died.) Not only would this numerically account for the missing estates, but it is also understandable when one considers the position that Thomas[4] found himself in at the time. He had reached the age of 45 by 1706 and had been married for nine years without producing any children. The chance of producing an heir must have seemed to have passed, and as he had no surviving male siblings, it would be natural for him to pass on some his estates to his blood cousin, John[2]. This makes even more sense if the earlier suggestion of the fatherless young John[2] coming to live with Thomas[4]'s parents was correct (see 'John[2] and his family', above), in which case he was probably considered more like a brother than a cousin.

Honnor:

There remains one marriage record still to be accounted for; the one from Wendron in 1683 between William Gundry and 'Hen.' Bosankoe. The record has been extracted by the COPC from 'Phillimores' which in turn probably transcribed it from Bishops Transcripts of the parish register. The Christian name of the bride has by some been interpreted as a shortened form of Henrietta, an idea which presents some difficulties. Firstly, Henrietta had never appeared as a Christian name anywhere in the family since records began. Secondly, there is no record of a Henrietta Gundry anywhere in Cornwall in records after the marriage for at least the next 100 years.

There is no record of any family baptisms in Wendron for 75 years up to the time of this marriage, so it is very likely that 'Hen.' was born in Crowan, where the family was flourishing. A more logical alternative to 'Henrietta' is Honnor, born about 1653, the daughter of John[2]. She would have been aged about 30 and single at the time of the marriage which took place about one year after her mother had died. Additionally, there is a Wendron burial record from 6th February 1684/5 for 'Honor Gundry', and that would have been 8 months after the marriage, which could suggest complications in pregnancy or child birth as a possible cause of death. On balance, then, it is more probable that the bride's Christian name was originally recorded as 'Hon.' and incorrectly transcribed at some point.

Temperance:

The evidence for Temperance Bosankoe comes from the baptism of her base child, Jane, in 1701. This implies that she was born after 1660, and therefore that she was a daughter of either Thomas^{3} or John^{2}. Of these, the more likely father would be John^{2}. He was a churchwarden, whose first child was baptised not with a traditional family name but with the biblical name of Daniel, so Temperance is not a surprising choice of name for one of his daughters. He also had a daughter, Jane (born 1692), who would therefore have been a sister to Temperance, which could be significant to the naming of baby Jane in 1701. There is a four year gap between the baptisms of John^{2}'s first two children (1681 and 1685), so Temperance was probably born in 1683. It follows that she was just 17 or 18 years old when her own child was born.

Unidentified burials:

It was pointed out previously that two surviving registered burial entries remained unaccounted for (those in 1687/8 and 1690.) Whilst it is still not possible to identify these definitively, the options can be limited. Of the known individuals carrying the Bosankoe surname during the 17th century, the foregoing analysis leaves just four individuals unaccounted for after 1690, and it is possible that the unidentified burial records relate to two of these four family members. These individuals are: Ann, wife of Thomas^{3}, born about 1655; Jane, born about 1651, daughter of Thomas^{2}; Catherine, born about 1658, daughter of John^{1}; and Daniell, born 1681, son of John^{2}. The most likely candidate for one of the burials is Daniell, as males do tend to surface in later records, and none for Daniell have been found.

SUMMARY

From its 15th century origin in Bosanketh near Penzance, the family spread into the parishes of St. Ives, Wendron, and Crowan. By 1650, the only surviving paternal line was in Crowan. This branch of the family appears to have been respectable and financially successful. A close-knit family, they were certainly well placed amongst the Cornish yeomen and gentry classes for almost a hundred years, and probably for much longer. Their standing in society was repeatedly reinforced over generations by suitable, probably arranged, marriages to others of similar or higher social standing.

Like most Cornish families of the time, they had a strong religious belief, and attended church regularly where they were accorded seats which also reflected their social status. Their standing in the community was further improved through the filling of important roles such as parish constable and churchwarden. Most Bosankoe sons grew up to become yeomen farmers like their fathers and grandfathers before them; most daughters were destined to become the wives of other yeomen farmers.

The family suffered its share of tragedies during the 17th century, notably with the early deaths of two young fathers. It was one of these events that led to the first branch away from the traditional family occupation of farming and into tailoring. Towards the end of the century, other opportunities were presenting themselves with the rising importance of tin and copper, and at least one member of the family chose to venture into mining.

As the century closed, there were two male branches of the Bosankoe family flourishing and a third branch which would soon die out. They were all living in Crowan, in the following family groups which were headed by two brothers and a cousin respectively:

- Thomas[3], aged 49, tailor; (with his wife, Ann, if still alive), and children Reynold[2] aged about 22, John[3] aged 20, Katherine aged about 18, and Thomas[5] aged 15.
- John[2], aged about 44, yeoman; with his wife Alice, and children William aged 15, John aged about 13, Jane aged about 8, Thomas[6] aged 4, and baby Alice.
- Thomas[4], aged about 39, yeoman; with his wife Elizabeth; and his widowed mother, Alice aged about 79.

It was only these individuals and their descendants that would carry the Bosankoe name forwards and face the challenges of the 18th century. This, of course, means that, today, all Bosankoes, anywhere in the world, descend from one yeoman farmer named Thomas Bosankoe, and his wife, Zenobya, who lived in Cornwall in the parish of Crowan in the early 17th century.

Cornwall Muster Roll 1569 (COPC)

The muster roll was limited to males aged 16 to 60 and includes the following:

Crowyn Parryshe : a a d John Bossancothe bill bow

Sent Tyves Parryshe : Thomas Bossancquthe alm . Rivet ----- 11 sh. Arr

(aad = an able archer; bill = billhook; sh. Arr = sheath of arrows; alm.rivet = almain rivet[armour])

Cornwall Protestation Returns 1641 (T.L. Stoate. 1974)

Wendron parish: Willyam Bosankow +

Crowan parish: John Bosanckoe + Thomas Bosanckow, constable.

The protestation was an oath of allegiance to the King and the established church. A bill was passed in Parliament in July 1641 requiring those over the age of 18 to sign the protestation. In practice, this meant all men; women were not usually asked to sign. No one was allowed to hold office in the church or the state unless they signed. A letter was sent by the Speaker of the House of Commons to the sheriffs instructing them to take the protestation with the justices of the peace in their county, and then the incumbent of each parish was to read the protestation to his parishioners and they were all to sign. This took place in February and March 1641/2. The Protestation Returns were then sent back to Parliament.

A TIME WHEN EVERYONE KNEW THEIR PLACE

By John David Bosanquet (22539)

On the 11th October 1666, the Bishop of Exeter (Seth) issued a commission to the Vicar of Crowan and the churchwardens to 'draw up a table of the seating with reference to all lawful private rights' since he had been informed that 'in the late time of sedition, and since, the parishioners have taken what places they pleased in Church, sitting promiscuously and unequally, so that many contentions and dissensions arise, to the scandal of Religion and violation of public peace.'

Clearly the natives were restless, and, while to our 21st century minds it might seem a little heavy handed to refer such matters to the Bishop, at the time this was considered a very important issue. During the preceding 25 years, England had been torn apart by civil war and the King had lost his head; the country had lurched from monarchy to commonwealth to protectorate and back to monarchy. Consequently, sedition was regarded as a very serious crime; one step short of treason, and punishable by life imprisonment. The Church of England had been restored as the national Church in 1662 by the Act of Uniformity and was determined to remain a dominant and stabilising force in society. The ideal place for the Bishop to reassert the Church's authority at grass roots level was the Parish Church which was a focal point of life for the whole local community, with almost every able bodied parishioner attending services regularly.

Due to the lengthening of sermons in the 17th century, pews had become a feature in most churches, and social rank was often considered as a major influence in the seating arrangements; those with higher social status were generally able to sit in the pews closest to the pulpit. It even became the custom in some rural places for the right to sit in a particular pew to be regarded as part of the property of a farm or cottage, and it may have been these 'lawful and private rights' that the Bishop was referring to in his commission. Many church congregations were also further segregated by gender, with the wives (along with widows and younger children) allocated seats farther back than their menfolk.

Following the Bishop's request, the vicar and churchwardens of Crowan duly did as they were bid, and a photocopy of the resultant seating plan is now held at the Cornwall Record Office. The original is probably buried in the archives of Exeter cathedral, but it must have been unearthed about 70 years ago by the Reverend Gilbert H. Doble who referred to it in his 1939 book entitled 'A History of the Parish of Crowan.' The church seating document provides a fascinating insight into Crowan society in 1666, giving the full names of just about all of the senior male parishioners and allocating each their particular seat in the church. Women are also named, but mostly without their Christian names (e.g. 'widow' or 'wife of'.)

The illustration shows the floor plan of Crowan parish church as it was in 1666 (it has been remodelled several times since), with the seating arrangements included. The pulpit seems to have been located between B and J on the diagram, the font was sited at the centre front of block P, and the church had both a north and south entrance. The north aisle, where seats A & G are shown, had been added to the earlier church building some 200 years previously, funded by the prominent ST AUBYN family.

Key to seating plan

A: Unspecified number of seats for John SEYNTAUBYN plus his friends & family.

B: 2 pews with Richard TREGEARE & John ROGERS on one, Richard NICKOLLS & Henry CLYSE on the other.

C: 1 pew for Thomas BOSANCKO & Henry DAVIE.

D: 1 pew for Thomas TIERACK & John WILLIAMS.

E: 1 pew for Ralph POLKINHORNE & Richard CONNALLY.

F: 3 pews for John HEARE & Henry REIGNOLD, William ARTHUR & John HIDON, John COALE.

G: Unspecified number of seats for the 'followers and servants' of John SEYNAUBYN.

H: 8 pews for 22 women (including the wives & daughters of some of those men seated further forward.)

J: 4 pews for 9 women (including the wives of some of those men seated further forward.)

K: 5 pews for 35 men (all named.)

L: 6 pews for 18 men (all named.)

M: 1 seat for the minister.

P: 7 pews seating 5 husbands, 29 wives, 4 widows, 5 men (single or widowed), and 2 single women.

Q: 6 pews seating the daughters of Richard TREGEARE and John ROGERS (unspecified number) plus 1 husband, 13 wives, 2 widows, 1 single woman.

In all, the plan names 81 adult males, 82+ adult females (wives, widows and daughters) and also includes an unspecified number of the family members and entourage of John SEYNTAUBYN. The other family names given in the document are: ANEAR, ARGOLL, ARTHUR, BURLACE, BOLITHOWE, BOSANKOE, BROWNE, BRYAN, BYNNER, CARBUS, CLYSE, COALE, COATH, CONNALLY, CONNER, COMMON, DALE, DAVIE, DAWES, DONNING, ELLIS, GLASON, GOLFERYE, HART, HEARE, HIDON, HOLMAN, HOSKIN, HUE, HUMPHRYE, HUTCHINS, JEFFRYES, JORY, KEMP, KITTOWE, KNEEBONE, LIBBY, LUCAS, MAN, NICKOLLS, PAULE, PEIRSE, POLKINHORNE, POLLEOWE, PRYOR, REELYE, REIGNOLD, RICHARD, ROGERS, ROWE, SAMPSON, SAUNDRYE, SOUTHCOTT, TIERACK, TRELOOER, TRESISE, TREUREN, TREVENNING, TRUSSELL, UDYE, VISSENT, VYOLL, WALTERS, WARREN, WILLIAMS, WHEARE, YESTLES

The timing of the plan is fortuitous in that it was drawn up just two years after the Hearth Tax Returns for Crowan (also held at the CRO) which were taken in 1664 and which provide another useful measure of status. These returns identify just over 90 households in the parish, which compares well with the seating plan totals. Taken together the evidence suggests a population for the parish of about four hundred (including children.) This is further corroborated by yet another document unearthed by the Reverend Doble who states in his book "In 1672 we learn from a document at Exeter {Cathedral Archives} that there were 400 Conformists [to the settlement of 1662] in Crowan, 9 Nonconformists and no Papists."

John SEYNTAUBYN of Clowance was by far the largest landowner in the parish and was recorded as having 21 of the total 180+ chimneys. Excluding this household from the calculations, then an average Crowan household would have had just one or two hearths. Using these returns as a guide to financial status, the wealthiest heads of households in Crowan in 1664 are listed below with their hearth numbers in brackets:

John SEYNTAUBYN (21), Richard TREGEARE (8), Henry SEYNTAUBYN (4), John ROGERS (4), John HEARLE (4), George WHEARE (4), Thomas BOSSANCOE (4), Henry DAVY (4), William ARTHUR (4), John WILLIAMS (4), William WILLIAMS (3), Roger WILLIAMS (3), Chris NICHOLS (3.)

Of these, Henry SEYNTAUBYN was the vicar at the time and would therefore naturally have sat in the minister's seat (M), but it can also be seen that many of the other more affluent men listed above can be found in the seating plan sitting at or near the front of the church. However, closer examination shows that the seating arrangements did not just reflect the wealth of the parishioners, and there were other factors used to determine social ranking in the church. For instance, John HIDON can be found listed with one hearth yet sat towards the front in block F, and this may have reflected his respected position as parish constable. Similarly, Edward COATH was one of the churchwardens, and he also had just one hearth yet sat at the front of block K. Formalising the church seating arrangements in this way not only reflected the local society, it also helped to reinforce the hierarchical social system by grouping together those considered as being of equal standing in the community.

Of course, for family historians, this snapshot of the social structure can offer more than just confirmation that an individual was still alive, married, or widowed in 1666. Marriage partners for sons and daughters would often be sought amongst those families that were seated near each other in church, and this provides a good starting point when trying to establish the maiden name (often missing in the marriage records) of a bride. Similarly, godparents for a new baby frequently came from the same peer group as the child's parents. Members of such families will therefore also often be found named in each other's wills as beneficiaries or witnesses, which can help to establish the relationships and fill in some of the gaps in the surviving parish registers.
